FROM THE PRESIDENT

Beginning again

Wow. Time flies. It is now my turn to head the stewardship of the RNA. It was just last summer at a local flea market, I mentioned to another collector that I would be the next president of the RNA; and I was taken aback by the response that, "It seems the RNA will let anybody be president." Expecting a personal insult, I asked him why he made that comment. It turns out the collector, who shall remain nameless, was a former member and president of the RNA, who felt the annual changes of the RNA presidency diluted the pool of qualified candidates for the position.

Since then I have been chewing my mental cud, pondering the comment. Surveying the members of our organization, I noticed we have people of many different backgrounds and age groups, who bring to the organization many different perspectives, interesting nuggets of knowledge and useful information to our hobby. Many offer the benefit of their professional expertise to assist the RNA in financial or legal matters. No matter what the area of your interest is, there is someone in the club willing and able to enlighten you on the subject. The more you interact with other members, the more you will learn and enjoy the RNA experience.

Then I reflected on the past presidents of the RNA, and realized I stand on the shoulders of many people who have contributed to the order and traditions we enjoy today. From the former member's perspective, the glass is half empty, but from my perspective, the glass is half full. For better or worse, the RNA is the sum total of all the effort and contributions of each and every member since 1912. Because of this, I believe we are a strong organization, and I hope, with the assistance of the RNA board and officers, to contribute to its continued success.

At this time, I would like to thank Ted Vacarella for his diligent service during the past year. Ted meticulously brought together several documents the club uses regularly throughout the year, and placed them on a computer disk to keep future RNA officers from having to "reinvent the wheel." He helped refine the mission statement of the RNA and promoted several programs in pursuit of those goals. He oversaw the revision of many protocols to secure, yet make accessible, both the RNA library and the collection. Ted also sowed the seed of renewed cooperation with the Rochester Museum & Science Center to promote numismatic-related activities, which I believe will be of mutual benefit to both organizations when the plans come to fruition. I am sure Ted will continue to be a valuable asset to the RNA.

As president, I see it as my job to implement many of the new protocols and plans now in place to promote the mission of the RNA. Personally, I would like to see the RNA collection digitally photographed and placed on the RNA Web site for every member to view. We shall see. But more importantly, I plan to continue to promote the fun and enjoyment of social fellowship the RNA currently enjoys. I look forward to working with all of you!

Lanzafame Presidency Saluted at Banquet

Joe Lanzafame, RNA president in 2006-07, enjoyed his honorary banquet May 23rd at the Green Lantern Inn in Fairport. RNA members enjoyed a buffet dinner that included carved prime rib, pasta, chicken and salmon. Members also received their presidential medals, which displayed Tibetan writing along with Joe's likeness. Banquet attendees received wooden nickels and custom postcards featuring Joe and his Great Pyrenees William Wallace, better known as Willie. The door prizes included postcards with first-day cancellation stamps.

Next up – the RNA picnic, Sunday, August 3rd

One of the highlights of the RNA calendar each year is the annual picnic, and this year the RNA's moveable feast relocates from Powder Mill Park, where it's been for the last seven summers, to Mendon Ponds Park.

The picnic isn't hard to find – if you're coming from most anywhere in Monroe County, make your way to Clover Street (Route 65) and head south. Mendon Ponds Park will be on your left as you head south. From the Thruway, take exit 46 (Henrietta) and head east on Route 253 (Calkins Road), then turn right on Clover Street. And if you're Tim and Darlene Corio, hang a left out of your driveway and just keep going a couple of miles...

The festivities begin with a board meeting at noon, to which all members are invited. Food service starts at 1 PM and runs until it's all gone. And don't forget to bring a white elephant item or two for our auction, which caps off the afternoon.

This year's picnic coincides with the end of the ANA's World's Fair of Money, being held in Baltimore July 29th-August 3rd. Members who'll be in Baltimore are encouraged to contact editor Scott Fybus so we can all get together, say hello and perhaps enjoy a crab cake or two.

And wherever your summer takes you, be sure to make our first meeting back on September 4th!

Club News and Notes

Josh Blodgett won the Meinhart Speaking Contest this year with his talk on the American dollar bill, in which he revealed that the bill was first issued in 1862, and that its current design debuted in 1957.

Three other RJNA members gave Josh some serious competition, and the judges enthusiastically applauded their talks.

Colin Cubitt spoke about Canadian Millennium Quarters, Thalia Irwin gave a presentation on the Australian kookaburra, which graces a silver coin in that country, and Thomas Coene talked about the commemorative coins of Benjamin Franklin's 300th birthday.

Each speaker received a trophy and a commemorative dollar coin.

The contest, which was held at the May 15th RNA meeting, is open every year to interested RJNA members.

Congratulations to Scott and Lisa Fybusch and David and Julie Gottfried on the newest additions to their families!

Eli Benjamin Fybusch (left) was born May 13th at 5:32 a.m., nearly five weeks early, but weighing in at a decent-sized 5 pounds, 8 ounces and 18½ inches long. Eli joins big sister Ariel, who will be five years old in September.

He has been growing very steadily, although he has not yet caught up to Samuel Xavier Gottfried! Samuel (right) was born June 25th at 9:31 a.m., right on his due date. He came into the world at an ample 11 pounds, 3 ounces and 22½ inches long. Samuel also has a big sister, Audrey, 19 months.

While we're on the "good and welfare" topic, the club welcomed Wayne and Pat Scheible back to town at the June 19th meeting after their winter in Arizona.

And the latest news about Bob Doty isn't as good as we all hoped – word from wife Jeannie is that three potential kidney donors were rejected, and Bob's condition is not improving. Keep him in your thoughts and prayers, won't you?

The RNA coin show coordinators urge members to consider putting together displays for the show November 1st and 2nd. Even though it's summer, now is a good time to get exhibits organized. The inside dimensions of the RNA cases are 32 by 20 inches. Interested members may call Gerry Muhl at 336-9459 with any questions.

Gerry Muhl's RNA Q&A

Why is there an axe on the reverse of the Winged Liberty Dime?

The first Winged Liberty dimes were struck in 1916, when World War I was raging in Europe. Technically, the U.S. was not involved in the fighting, although a number of our ships had been sunk and we were selling millions of dollars of supplies to both England and France. The device on the dime's reverse is known as a fasces, actually an axe bound within a group of rods.

According to Walter Breen in his Complete Encyclopedia of U.S. and Colonial Coins, the symbolism of the executioner's axe was interpreted as the power of life or death. In ancient Roman law, it connoted the power to kill mercifully by the blade or mercilessly by the rods. The symbol was an updated "Don't tread on me." It could also be interpreted as saying that the U.S. could instantly punish with extreme force if necessary, therefore enemies of liberty, beware.

By the way, those bands holding the rods together are one diagnostic of whether the time is of higher grade. The most sought-after coin is one with the three sets of bands so well struck that the centerline of the bands is clear and without interruption.

What proof coins exist from U.S. branch mints?

The 1838-O half-dollar, of which only 20 exist. The die broke after 20 impressions were made. The 1879-O dollar, which was struck upon reopening the New Orleans Mint after the Civil War. There are 12 of them. The 1883-O dollar, which was struck on a hydraulic press, and of which there are 12 in existence. It is not known how many exist of the 1921-S dollar and the 1855-S quarter eagle. There is more than one remaining of the 1854-S 20-dollar gold piece.

Editor's Note: Collecting the RNA's presidential medals has long been a popular pastime for club members. Here, Art Cohen (himself honored on the 1990 medal) offers a price guide to RNA medals.

McLeod Stamp & Coin Co. says farewell

John Kellas, left, and Ursula Loose (with then-not-quite-one-year-old future RJNA member Ariel Fybush) served the numismatic public for 34 years with their store, McLeod Stamp & Coin Company.

On March 1, 2008, Ursula Loose and John Kellas closed the doors of McLeod Stamp & Coin Company at 2423 Monroe Avenue for the last time, ending a 34-year run as one of Rochester's foremost coin shops and the city's last full-service stamp dealer.

McLeod Stamp & Coin Company was founded in 1974 by the late Andy Hale and coin dealer David Bates. Loose joined the firm in 1975, Kellas in 1977 and Randy Jones in 1981. Throughout the shop's existence, they were the only full-time employees, joined by part-time secretary Beverly Herzich.

The 1990s brought a move from the original cramped second-floor space at 2198 Monroe Ave. to a larger, first-floor facility down the street.

Bates had left Rochester in 1977, leaving Hale as sole owner until his death in 2001. Loose and Kellas became co-owners of the shop for the remainder of its existence.

Several significant numismatic finds marked the shop's final years. In 2004, Jones talked to a walk-in customer whose family had owned a 1792 pattern no-silver-center cent for over two centuries. The specimen, previously unknown to collectors, brought $437,000 at auction in 2005.

Loose purchased a 1796 large cent from a customer, then answered an offhand "is this worth anything?" question about another coin in the customer's purse, identifying an AU 1796 dime valued at more than $20,000.

In the store's final months, RJNA member Eshan Mitra plucked a high-grade 1955 double-die cent out of the "junk box," a fitting find in a store known for its support of young collectors.

McLeod's stock was sold to Henry Gitner Philatelists, Inc. of Middletown, NY in early March. Gitner resold the firm's name and much of its numismatic material to James Frey's Greece Coin and Stamp Co.

The former McLeod space at 2423 Monroe Ave. was leased to RNA member Douglas Musinger, who has reopened as Brighton Tokens & Coins, with Jones and RNA member Dan White as employees.

Ursula, John and Randy thank the members of the RNA for all their support and patronage!
